Learning Objectives

1. Explore the changing paradigm of AA and AD disease presentation and treatment approach.
2. Assess and interpret the latest clinical trial data among emerging oral agents in AA and/or AD and terms of therapeutic target, safety, efficacy, and tolerability.
3. Recognize the potential place in therapy and monitoring aspects for the emerging agents in AD and AA in order to effectively engage patients in shared decision-making for their treatment plan.
4. Outline a plan to proactively identify and remove barriers for health maintenance services and medication access in underserved patients with AA and/or AD.

Target Audience

This curriculum is intended for a broad audience of community pharmacists, dermatologic specialty pharmacists, and managed care professionals involved in the care and treatment of patients with AD and/or AA.
